Developing Writing Skills

At schools across our country, children are taught to read and write. We massage and perfect the speaking and writing process at every level until high school graduation. The students in Mr. Nick's room are at the beginning of their learning experience with writing. To make his lessons more motivating, he asked students to practice writing through comic strips and ransom notes. It was an enjoyable way to improve writing skills.

Guest Speaker

Arielle Buyum, BSN, MPH, is returning to the middle school room on Wednesday to continue her discussions with students on reproductive health. She met with the students last December, splitting the girls and boys to discuss issues with them in a more appropriate setting. She has a Masters degree in Public Health and 20 years of health care experience. We are glad to have her back!

Swim Morning at PIC

Our students in grades 4-8 went to PIC for a morning of free swimming last week. We offer our thanks to the folks at PIC for inviting us to use their pools free of charge this year. Every class was able to attend two sessions during the year. We also thank the parents who volunteered their time to drive and chaperone at all these swimming events.
